PUBLISHING WITH ASP

About ASP

Academic Studies Press is an independent scholarly publisher devoted to advancing knowledge and understanding in the humanities and social sciences, with an emphasis on Jewish Studies and Slavic Studies. Through our outstanding, opinion-leading authors and series editors, we continuously strive to enhance understanding through our monographs and critical companions, improve the accessibility of classic works through our translations, and inspire dialogue through our memoirs and scholarly commentaries. We champion innovative ideas and new, creative interpretations.

First Book Program

Publication with a respected scholarly press like ASP will help you to advance your academic career. We can help you turn your doctoral dissertation into an impressive scholarly monograph. Our peer review process for young scholars includes reports from two of your senior colleagues, one of which will focus specifically on structural and editorial recommendations.

At your request, ASP can also offer “in house” developmental editing of your manuscript prior to its submission for peer review. Developmental editing will enhance the likelihood of the recommendation to publish your manuscript as well as improve the academic quality and scholarly reception of your published monograph.

WHY PUBLISH WITH ACADEMIC STUDIES PRESS?

Professionalism

ASP is committed to publishing the most thought-provoking scholarship in Jewish and Slavic Studies. We place a strong emphasis on quality and have experience publishing both the seasoned scholar and the first-time author. Our publishing program is consistent and credible. ASP is also pleased to provide a number of services not always offered by academic presses, including copyediting, proofreading, index creation, and attractive cover art design.

Peer Review

All ASP titles are curated in collaboration with our series editors, who are major scholars in their respective fields, and undergo rigorous peer review before official acceptance.

Copyediting

Our network of trained copyeditors are well-versed in the ASP style guide. Throughout the copyediting stage, we encourage open communication between you and your designated copyeditor to ensure that your manuscript is both strengthened and also representative of your authorial voice.

Collaboration

We are happy to help our authors secure copyright permissions for illustrations or the republication of articles, and to assist our authors in putting together documentation to obtain research grants for their publications with us. In cases when a subvention is necessary, we work to keep costs as low as possible.

Production

Our experienced Production staff is ready to move your manuscript through the publication process in a timely and professional manner. We pride ourselves on having one of the fastest production timelines in the academic publishing business.

Typesetting & Design

Your scholarship deserves to be presented in a professional manner. From the attractive cover art to the clear typographical layout, our volumes are frequently complimented on their design quality in both print and digital formats.

Printing

To ensure that your work will always remain available in print format, ASP has teamed up with a leading Print-on-Demand supplier known for its exceptional quality and efficiency.

Promotion

Our Sales & Marketing team will work closely with you to determine the best marketing strategies for your book. At the minimum, all titles receive:

- ◇ accurate profiling and data distribution through data agencies
- ◇ a full catalog page on www.academicstudiespress.com
- ◇ inclusion in catalogs sent to lecturers, libraries, library suppliers, sales representatives and bookshops
- ◇ inclusion in subject-specific promotional pieces taken to conferences and events
- ◇ advertising in relevant print journals and publications
- ◇ inclusion in relevant subject-specific emails sent to our email databases
- ◇ review copy mailing to appropriate journals and publications
- ◇ promotion through social media platforms

Conferences

ASP recognizes the importance of displaying your book in print format to its intended audience. Whether through our distributors, third-party book exhibitors, or direct representation, ASP makes every attempt to display your book at all relevant academic meetings. Each year, our books are represented at over twenty conferences.

International Distribution

ASP titles are distributed in North America by ISD - Distributor of Scholarly Books and in the overseas market by Eurospan Limited. Both distributors are well-respected in the academic book market and perform their own marketing efforts, including data distribution, conference participation, subject-specific print and email campaigns, and sales representation. Our distributors have close relationships with the trade's most important wholesalers and retailers and strive to keep libraries, scholars, and the general reader well-informed of our catalog offerings.

Digital Distribution

All ASP titles are available digitally through a number of online ebook platforms. This includes major library subscription services such as ProQuest and EBSCO. ASP makes great efforts to present a variety of formats to customers—with an emphasis on libraries—to ensure that all purchasing preferences are met.

Series Highlight: Liber Primus

"Liber Primus" is a new series designed for authors early in their careers, in many cases assistant professors coming up for tenure. A primary goal of the series is to create an outlet for outstanding academic books in our field at a time when university presses, forced to focus on "bottom lines" and trim their lists accordingly, are increasingly unlikely, regardless of the project, to take on proposals from untested, younger, less published scholars in our field. The series does not promote any specific scholarly-critical methodology, nor does it limit itself to any period, genre, or author grouping in Russian/Slavic literature/culture. Primary criteria will be quality of the research, conceptual robustness, clarity of thought, and elegance of style. Interdisciplinary projects are welcome. The vetting process will be rigorous and "blind," with readers normally including a specialist with appropriate expertise and a member of the editorial board. It is the editor's and editorial board's hope that the seriousness of the review process and the attractiveness and attention to detail accompanying the finished product will give the books in this series the sort of "imprimatur" that deans and tenure committees will take into account as they shape the future of the discipline and the profession.

“Though a relatively new press, ASP has already published a large number of innovative and fundamental books in Russian studies, books written by acknowledged and young scholars alike. What distinguishes ASP from other presses is its openness for innovative approaches to scholarship and a readiness to explore subjects that other academic presses might find too “esoteric” and “unpopular”. At the same time, for a peer-review press, it works with incredible efficiency. The process of the book publication from the submission of a manuscript to the final product appears to be two or even three times shorter than in the university presses. But most importantly, it is our press: Slavic and Russian studies constitute one of the main directions in the work of ASP, which certainly differs it from other US academic presses where our field is pushed into a back row.”

—Mark Lipovetsky, University of Colorado, Boulder, “Cultural Syllabus” Series Editor

“Academic Studies Press has grown into a serious alternative to many university presses. Along with issuing extremely valuable monographs on Jewish Studies, it has established several important series devoted to Russian and Slavic literatures and cultures that present the works by the most prominent scholars in the field. The Press also seeks to create most favorable conditions for the younger scholars’ first monographs.”

— Lazar Fleishman, Stanford University, “Studies in Russian and Slavic Literatures, Cultures and History
